SEDONA BOUTIQUE HOTEL

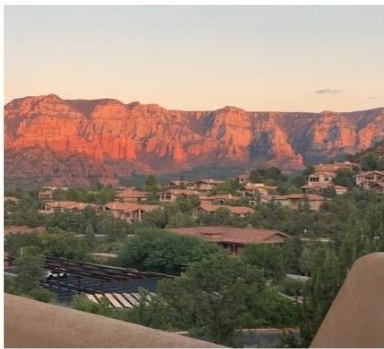

Sky Rock Inn of Sedona, a new boutique hotel, has opened atop the West Sedona hilltop along Verde Valley's main thoroughfare. Point Hospitality Group of San Francisco opened the property, which is personal for Point founder and Sky Rock owner Stephen Yang: He first experienced the magnetism of Sedona in his 20s, only to visit and feel instantly renewed again years later.

"Sedona is a pure window into the earth's soul, a place where the earth has opened itself up to us," Yang says. "We built Sky Rock to capture and transfer its deep, transformative spirit to our guests."

The property straddles two of Sedona's vortexes to empower self-reflection and healing throughout. The interior palette of burnished copper hues and starry night blues reflects Sedona's mountain-brushed skies. Hand-drawn dreamcatchers and indigenous textures extend a hand of welcome from neighboring Native American tribes.

Sky Rock's grounds encourage meditation, community and adventure through wellness workshops, Jeep tours, and hiking or biking through Sedona's world-class trails. Customized trail maps, a bike repair station and storage aid guests in exploration. Each guest receives a yoga mat to use at the fully equipped fitness center or outside in the celestial mountain air. A year-round heated pool and spa provide a restorative respite.

Sky Rock is within walking distance to shops, best-in-class restaurants, breweries, art galleries, abundant trail heads and Posse Grounds park.

STEAKHOUSE REFRESH

Mastro's City Hall, on Camelback Road in downtown Scottsdale, completed a four-month, floor-to-ceiling renovation in late 2019. After being in business for more than 15 years, the steakhouse now sports a more modern look and feel. The refresh includes new lighting, art, paint, mirrors, furniture, décor, flooring and signage, along with an updated wine wall and live music area. The bar within the restaurant features a new bottle display that wraps around the top of the entire bar with new lighting. The restaurant also added a tableside wine service and new uniforms, and a new Mastro's logo was added to the patio fireplace.

The menu was enhanced with new items, including Sliced Japanese A5 Wagyu and True Kobe Beef served on a Hot Stone, Wagyu Beef Sushi Roll, Spinalis Ribeye Gold Cap, Heart of the Ribeye, A5 Kobe Beef and Dover Sole.

Mastro's City Hall is one of three Mastro's restaurants in Scottsdale.
